CONFIDENTIAL BRIEF — UNION / EMPLOYEE-SIDE TEAM

You represent the Kiptenai County Branch of the health workers' union, acting on behalf of the two radiography technicians.

Your position: Upgrade both technicians from Job Group K to Job Group M, backdated 12 months, plus a monthly specialised-equipment allowance going forward.

Your underlying interests: Fair recognition of skill genuinely being used; protecting morale and retention — one of the two technicians has already received an informal job offer from a private hospital in Nairobi offering better grading; setting a positive precedent so other staff who upskill are not discouraged from doing so.

Your strongest card: A comparable neighbouring facility — Bomani County Referral Hospital — upgraded its equivalent radiography technicians to Job Group M after similar equipment training, roughly a year ago. Use this as your comparability argument.

Anticipate: Management may say a formal SRC-sanctioned job evaluation is required before any regrading can be confirmed. Do not simply accept this as a reason to walk away with nothing — ask what management CAN commit to now (a lawful interim measure, subject to required SRC advice, approvals and appropriation; a firm timeline for requesting evaluation) while the formal process runs.

Your walk-away point: At minimum, you need: a lawful interim specialised-duty measure, with the required SRC advice, approvals and appropriation secured, and a written, dated commitment that management will formally request an SRC job evaluation for the radiography cadre within a specific timeframe. Full backdated regrading remains your preferred outcome, but is not your only acceptable one.
